Farly yesterday morning Maintenance and Operation's personnel began moving office equipment out of Neville Hall, which had been gutted by fire Monday. A crane was used to lift materials out of the destroyed third floor. Psychology staff members have not yet determined the damage.

Sipple Appeals For SC Support

The new Student Congress president appealed to the students not to "fluff" their chance assembly.

Student Congress," Sipple urged.

Psychology professor Dr. Albert
Lott, pausing from the hectic relocation process, said, "Final exans, classes—in short, everything —will go ahead as scheduled."
Dr. Lott noted the some of the heaviest losses of the fire were suffered by graduate students who had offices located on the second and third floors of Neville Hall. In general, the professor estimated, the students were set back in their work six months or more.

Dr. Lott said that there was no insurance to cover research mapealed to the student's not to "finff" their clames to put UK student government back on its feet.

"If we kill it this spring it will never come back," Garryl Sipple told the 89 representatives at the assembly's first meeting Monday night.

"I want to get Student Congress started back, We've gotten the chance—so do one thing—support Student Congress," Sipple urged.

Judging from the attendance Monday night, Student Congress is well on its way to power again. At full strength there are 105 representatives including ex-officio members. Only 16 members were absent.

The election meeting lasted two hours and 40 minutes. Sipple told the delegates that there "would" the same broaders as should be considered by the assembly.

Sipple also asked each delegate to let their friends and classmattes know that they were Student Congress representatives. This way, he pointed out. We can get first hand the problems of many students.

John Williams, Commerce representative, who was also nominated for the presidency, but withere in favor of Sipple, spoke briefly in behalf of Sipple before the presidential ballot was taken.

Williams said Sipple intended to investigate insuling a caution traffic light near the Fine Arts Building for girls crossing Rose Street to sorority now. He added that Sipple also was in favor of mimore in the chi Omega Sorority house leading to sorority induses.

According to Williams, Sipple also advocates using the Social Science Building as a study hall when the political science department is moved to Kastle Hall.

In closing the meeting, Sipple appointed study committees to investigate three campus problems. Committees were appointed to study compulsory courses, campus lighting, and building a new sidewaik to sorority row.

Not only are UK students rushing to meet deadlines, but students throughout the nation are also confronted with the bi-annual problem.

Seeking to take advantage of the student's problems, the Capital Writers Bureau in Washingion, D. C., sent pamphiets to UK students offering to write term papers. This firm advertised that it would write papers for from $1.10 to $1.40 a page.

The pamphiet said the bureau would "ghost write almost anything." It claimed to have professional writers and researchers that were Ph.D. trained.

Ghostwriting for students has no doubt been going on for many years, but only in the past two decades has it become so widespread. A student can now purchase a thesis from a firm for $3,000 to get a Ph.D degree. This sum is extremely small compared to what the "purchased" degree will earn an individual during a lifetime.

Dr. Dickey expressed concern pus. "Anytime a large portion of the student body receives this (circulars) it is serious enough to cause delinite concern," Dr. Dickey

New KRF Grants Total $628,574

The Kentucky Research Founda-tion has announced receipt of new grants and research contracts totaling $628,574 for the first five months of the 1960-61 fiscal year.

Dr. Merl Baker, executive direc-tor of KRF, said the amount equaled approximately the same total the Foundation received dur-ing the entire 1959-50 fiscal year.

Gifts for scholarships during the five-month period totaled $86,764. Baker said, making a total of near-ly three-fourths of a million dol-lars.

Baker attributed the jump in funds to an increase in research interest on the part of the Uni-versity faculty, especially Medical Center researchers and profes-

Faculty action regarding sus-pension or expulsion has to eman-ate from the instructor of the class where the incident occurred, Dr. Dickey added.

Another UK administrator, Dean of Women Doris M. Seward, has also shown interest in the problem. After seeing a copy of the circular sent a Keeneland Hall resident, Dean Seward wrote letters to the Office of Education of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare; the American Council on Education; and the National Medical Council on Education; and the National Council on Education; and the National Council on Education; and the National Council Council on Education; and the National Council Dr. Dickey added.

It is impossible to tell how many students at UK and elsewhere have taken advantage of these ghostwriting services. Subscribing to this means of gaining a degree may not be illegal in Kentucky, but it is definitely un-Kentucky, but it is definitely un-

THE ENGINEERS HAVE HAIRY EARS

Today in this age of technology when engineering graduated are woord and courted by all of America's great industries, how do you account for the fact that Rimbaud Signfoos, who finished at the very top of his class at M.I.T., turned down hundreds of attractive job offers to accept employment as a machinery wiper at the Acme Ice Company at a salary of $20 a weet; with a twelve-hour day, a seven-day week, and only fifteen minutes for lunch?

I know what you are thinking: "Cherchez la femme!" You are thinking that Mr. Acme, head of the Acme Ice Company, has a beautiful daughter with whom Rimband is madly in love and he took the job only to be near her.

Friends, you are wrong. It is true that Mr. Acme does have a daughter, a large, torpid lass named Clardia who spends all her waking hours scooping marzipan out of a bucket and staring at a television set which has not worked in some years. Rimband has not the slightest interest in Clavdia; nor, indeed, does any other man, excepting possibly John Ringling North.

So how come Rimbaud keeps working for the Acme Ico Company? Can it be that they provide him with free Marlboro Cigarettes, and all day long he is able to settle back, make himself comfortable and enjoy the filter cigarette with the un-

No. friends, no. Rimbaud is not allowed to smoke on the job and when he finishes his long, miserable day he has to buy his own Mariboros, even as you and I, in order to settle back and enjoy that choice tobacco, that smooth, mellow flavor, that in-comparable filter, that pack or box.

Well, friends, you might as well give up because you'll ne in a million years guess why Rimbaud works for the Acme Ice Company. The reason is simply this Rimbaud is a seal!

He started as a performing scal in vandeville. One night on the way to the Ld Sullivan show, he took the wrong subway. All night the poor mammal rode the B.M.T., seeking a helping hand. Finally a kindly brakeman named Ernest Thompson Sigafoos rescued the hapless Rimbaud.

He took Rimbaud home and raised him as his own, and Rimbaud, to show his appreciation, studied hard and got excellent marks and finished a distinguished academic career as valedictorian of M.I.T.

Rimbaud never complained to his kindly foster father, but through all those years of grainmar school and high school and college, he darn near died of the heat! A seal, you must remember, is by nature a denizen of the Arctic, so you can im-ngine how poor Rimbaud must have suffered in subtropical New York and Boston, especially in those tight Ivy League

But today at the Acme Ice Company, Rimbaud has finally found a temperature to his liking. He is very happy and sends greetings to his many friends.

The Youth Peace Corps

From the ivy-covered halls of President-elect John Kennedy's headquarters has come the nuclens of Mr. Kennedy's proposed Youth Peace Corps.

As outlined by Dr. Max Millikan, director of the Center for International Students at Massachusetts Institute of Teelmology, who headed the group which drew up the plan, the Peace Corps will be anything but the haven for draft dodgers Vice President Richard Nixon pictured it to be during the presidential campaign.

Instead of being exempted from the draft as mentioned by Mr. Kennedy during the campaign, young men would merely be made cligible for draft deferment as some graduate students now are.

The United States government would pay for the training of the corps which would include several months of foreign language study where necessary, but host govern-ments would pay the basic wages of the Peace Corps volunteers at local rates for the work performed. In addition, care would be taken to avoid setting corps members up as a conspicuously well-to-do class in the local societies (a complaint often leveled against our armed forces overseas).

With Peace Corps members recruited for two years service in underdeveloped nations, paid at local rates, placed in lower level housing, and promised no draft exemptions, it could easily turn out that military service would be more attractive to most young people.

these reasons, the committee For headed by Dr. Millikan would do well to reconsider its proposals and make several changes.

We would like to see the Youth Peace Corps instituted in American Universities alongside that grand daddy of college youth corps-the Reserve Officers Training Corps.

A program of the magnitude and importance of the Peace Corps cannot properly serve its aims-inprovement of international understanding and good will-if its members have only several months to learn the complex languages and eustoms of such underdeveloped areas as the Middle East, South America, or Southeast

Only through a program paralleling ROTC and offering the same benefits-properly supervised training designed to enable students to enter the Peace Corps ready to take their places in it, exemption from selective service, and fulfillment of their military obligations-will the Peace Corps be able to achieve the ends Mr. Kennedy has envisioned for it.

We hope a forward-looking president and Congress will realize the importance of such a training program to the Peace Corps and institute it before the idea of a Peace Corps is lost altogether.

"Uh . . . Jane, you . . . uh . . . sewed me to the couch."

Expensive Segregation

School strife in New Orleans has eansed renewed appeariness among business and financial men in the state. The more responsible members of the legislature have become concerned.

Louisiana's economic deterioration began about two years ago when the antics of the vulgar, demented Earl Long became a national scandal, or a comic opera, depending upon how one viewed it.

Companies with money to invest, including at least one major foreign nation, dropped plans to go into the state. Now the school chaos has been added, and the decline continues. The Wall Street Journal recently did a page one story on the economic damage done to New Orleans and the state.

A business concern, expecting to invest several millions of dollars, wants to be sure of some political stability. It also wants a caba climate in which to do business. It certainly expects that its employees, its executives and those in the plant will be able to educate their children.

Investment money does not run the risk of mobs, boyeotts, and the strife which so damaged Little Rock and Arkansas, which for a time threat-Virginia, and which now has added to the deterioration growing out of Earl Long's pathetic folly. In the past two years Louisiana has had an economic loss which reliably is reported the largest percentage of any Southeastern state.

The Southeast is in a period of transition from agriculture to inchistry. It badly needs more educated people and more jobs. It cannot have these unless it offers a stable political climate and an educational system which can provide the necessary preparation for university and technological training.

If it does not do this it will condemn a whole region and its people to an undetermined period of a pinelied and uncertain development.

The state of Georgia has just added its own report. It is shocking but

A serious study, over a period of six months, was participated in by the County Commissioners Association, the Georgia Municipal Association, and a State Senate Committee, The conclusion is that "unless an endowed program of economic development is organized at the earliest possible time, many areas in Georgia will be in such bad shape within five years that it will be virtually impossible for them ever to rebuild their economies."

This is a shocker. But it is a condition well known to those who have been giving it even casual attention.

The Georgia study, done by no ontside agency or Yankee group but by grass roots people, found that over half of Georgia's 159 counties are gr atly in need of NEW industrial pay olls."

Will they get them by closing their schools?

The report on Georgia by Georgians said further that a dismaying 68 counties actually lost manufacturing employment between 1947 and 1958.

Will closing the schools bring back employment?

Will riots and disorder attract new plants and create jobs?

The Georgia story, in one degree or another, is that of the whole Deep South. The cities, which have been able to offer improved schools and opportunity, have not yet suffered. But the rural counties are in decline and will continue so until they act re-sponsibly with a full understanding f the facts of their own lives and that of our nation and the world.

The Southeast cannot much longer deny the national values. It is face to face with reality. No amount of anger, wishful thinking, breast-beating, or defiance of law will change that reality.

A Coeducational World

In a recent issue of a national Sunday magazine supplement featuring an article concerning coedneational dormitories at UCLA, the university honsing supervisor was quoted as say ing all future dorms would house both men and women.

At the same time UK is discontinuing its first eoed dorm. After the successful experiment with coed living in Bowman Hall, a similar arrangement should be eonsidered when planning future dorm construction. And in the interim officials could consider maintaining the coed setup in the Quadrangle.

At UCLA, the consensus is that an arrangement whereby women occupy three floors of a 10-story dormitory has not led to "scholastic or moral failure." On the contrary, they say coed living has solved a number of behavior problems and has changed "boys into gentlemen," especially in language and dress. Observations in the coed Quadrangle support that position.

The present unsatisfactory dormitory arrangement here apparently is based on the premise that the sexes may attend class together but living in elose proximity is taboo. An analogy with Harry Golden's vertiele Negro plan for school integration comes to mind.

If not a diabolieal plot to frustrate prospective Romeos, the remote women's dorms at least serve to dampen the ardour of many. Since most male dorm residents are not permitted to operated an automobile, the walk across campus on a rainy evening can prove an insurmountable obstacle to romance.

Even when the present coed dorm was instituted of necessity the girls were not permitted to eat dinner with the men but have been obliged to trudge across eampus to the SUB. Why the sexes may break bread together at breakfast but not at dinner is not easily understood. Perhaps it is felt that students would be too sleepy to be interested at 7 a.m.-or that the coeds' appearance at breakfast in eurlers would seare off any male advances.

We admit that providing easy aceess to the opposite sex through living arrangements which exude the atmosphere of a harem does not fall within a university's area of responsibility; however, in the mid-20th century, with many years separating us from our Paritan forebearers, neither does providing a four-block chastity belt by locating the sexes on opposite ends the campus.

If a university is, as has been said so often, life in miniature, UK is not fullfilling its responsibilities to train men and women for the larger world ontside. For there, men and women live and work in close proximity.

And we have heard they sometimes have dinner together.

Neville Hall Fire Recalls Past UK Disasters

Suddenly The Ball Was Over

On the night of Feb. 15, 1946, students were having a high time in the SUB Ballroom when the sound of screaming sirens suddenly pierced the gay atmosphere. The students raced out of the SUB and were confronted with a blazing image of the old Maintenance and Operations Building on South Limestone Street (left). Dressed in formal evening wear, they hurrled to the scene and helped firemen save some equipment before flames consumed the building. In the morning the sun shone on the scene at right, and the University was $400,000 poorer.

Grass Grows Here Now

Thirteen years ago a solid looking, two-story, brick structure known as Norwood Hall stood just north of the Mining Laboratory and west of the King Library. In Nov., 1948, the hall was partly ravaged by fire. The $200,000 damage included the destruction of all the laboratory equipment and records of the Kentucky Department of Mines and Minerals.

Started By A Bomb?

Mystery surrounds the cause of the fire which did $105,000 damage to Frazee Hall early in 1956. It was rumored that students set off a bomb on the ground floor. Among the losses were most of the books belonging to the Philosophy Department.

No Play Tonight
Gulgnol Theatre was once housed in a rebuilt frame church on the site of the Euclid Avenue Classroom Building. The building and many of its contents were destroyed by fire in February, 1957. During the blaze the heat became so intense it activated the sprinkler system in nearby Jewell Hall.

Fortunately, Only Calves Went Up In Smoke

It was milking time in the Dairy Barn one Sunday morning in the spring of 1953 when the left wing burst into flames. When the smoke cleared, the College of Agriculture was minus U calves, 500 tons of hay, two carloads of grain, and $75.000.

False Alarm Sounded

Where there's smoke, there isn't ceilings, floors, and attic. Since they could find they nothing, they left.

Dr. A. Lee Coleman, head of the Department of Sociology, said that it would probably be safe to second floor, "We smelled smoke when we returned from lunch, and even the men got excited and suggested that it be reported."

From here it is difficult to understand the current hattle going on between the Arts and Sciences College and the Department of Physical Education concerning the P.E. requirement.

Coming from an A&S student (with the P.E. requirement far behind), this opinion reads, to wit: the current A&S physical education requirement is moronic and childish.

The current requirement is that all physically fit students complete two credit hours of physical education prior to

Hence, we find a student huilding his hody three hours because of an ulcer condition. each week for two 18-week semesters!

Coming out of the program, should be feel that he has fulfilled his obligation to his own body and is in fine physical condition?

Surely, no individual on our campus holds that the eurrent program renders its participants physically adequate. The present requirement is a faree which wouldn't improve the coordination of an aardvark.

The program does, however, teach a student the basic principles of a sport in which he may wish to participate following graduation. This is the sole value of P.E. courses for non-P.E. majors.

But, criticism unaccompanied by a solution is little more than hot air. Yes, we have a suggestion to offer for a possible solution. Yet, there's only one minor drawback-it won't work.

First, the suggestion is offered, then its fallacies

-A physically capable student should have three class hours of P.E. each week for each semester he's in school.

The courses, however, should not be graded on an A, B, C, cte. basis. Instead, the student should receive only a mark of satisfactory or unsatisfactory-eight satisfactories required for graduation. And, the grade should not in any way affect his semester or overall point standing.

Thus, the egghead student not endowed with the brawn of a Lou Michaels cannot be denied his 4.0 standing. Likewise, the "Mighty Casey" cannot run up his standing by scheduling a heavy load of P.E. courses.

It is foolhardy to think these two students could compete in coordinated physical activities on the same grading basis, yet the University has done this for many years.

All physically capable individuals need a certain amount of exercise (so they say). Physical education offers an opportunity to learn a sport in which one may participate during his later life. The department's purpose is defeated when the individual fails to carry on with the sport after graduation.

The department can only give the students the opportunity to learn. It should not, therefore, instill a negative attitude concerning the activity by cuforcing a ridiculous re quirement compounded by an inadequate grading system.

Many students have been heard coming out of a P.E. course saying, "I hope I never see a swimming pool again."

A game unique in Kentneky football history occurred in 1900. The Wildcats beat the Louisville YMCA, Wildcats beat the Louisville YMCA, 12-6, without running a single of-fensive play. Kicking on first down every time they gained possession of the ball, the Wildcats made their scores through the recovery of op-ponent fumbles in the end zone.

This attitude defeats all the P.E. program has sought to establish, but it persists. It persists with improper grading values and ,of course, perfection-demanding instructors.

Now for the fallacy of our little project: It has just one minor catch-the University lacks the money, facilities, and instructors for such an extended program.

And, unfortunately, it appears many years will pass be-fore the constitution revisers are able to loosen Kentucky's purse strings enough to provide the state's youth a decent

Steps have been and are being taken to extend P.E. facilities and a fine new Sports Center is being developed, but, until the P.E. department can offer a program similar to the one just suggested, the present langhable two-honr requirement should be discontinued.

Lou Smith, sports editor of the Cincinnati Enquirer, recently printed the following letter from Kentneky Coach Adolph Rupp. Said the Baron:

Noticed in one of your recent columns that Kentucky will come back and be the No. 1 team in college basketball in the 1961-62 season.

"Lon, you may be a year early but you can bet your last nickel 'Uncle Adolph' is shuffling around for another NCAA trophy.

Smilli's prediction may be a year early, but here's one graduating senior who would enjoy being a freshman again and have the opportunity to watch the "Cotton-land Five" in its quest for an NCAA title.

Kentucky should be loaded for bear next year in both basketball and football. With the material returning from this year's squad plus a top-notch freshman squad plus a top-notch freshman squad, and some outstanding red-shirts, a coach had better quit if he doesn't receive a bowl bid.

Of course, this year's football squad bad the material for an 8-2 season and a bowl bid. If a faulty communication system between the bench and the playing field is corrected, a bowl bid should come at the end of the 1931 grid season.
